ABOUT

Hi! I'm John Philip Matunog, a freelance web designer and front-end web developer. I first had interest in web development after I attended a seminar in web development held at Davao City, Philippines 3 years ago. After that, my brother encouraged me to hone my skills in web development through self study and freelance jobs. Before I became a Web Developer, I also had experience working as a Virtual Assistant for a year and a half. My goal as an online freelancer is to become an all in one package type of employee to fulfill the needs of my employer.

OBJECTIVES

I am a very keen worker which requires minimum supervision and very trustworthy. My objective is to complement your needs and goals with the quality of my work, therefore contributing to your company's success.
